

Resilient LLP Welcomes Jonathan McGillivray as Partner

June 11, 2024

Resilient is pleased to announce the addition of Jonathan McGillivray as a partner, effective June 11, 2024.

“Jonathan is a long-standing member of the Resilient team, and we are thrilled to welcome him as a partner and celebrate this significant milestone with him,” said Lisa DeMarco, Senior Partner and CEO of Resilient. “Jonathan’s addition to the partnership affirms our focus on excellence in client service and our commitment to resilient growth.”

Jonathan’s practice extends to all aspects of climate change and clean energy law. He advises on a variety of mandates driven by the transition to a net-zero economy and assists our domestic and global clients on climate strategy, decarbonization initiatives, carbon finance, innovative carbon transactions (including emission reduction and carbon removal purchase agreements and sustainable fuels agreements), biodiversity transactions, and energy regulatory compliance. He also advises proponents, investors, standards, and other organizations on carbon markets investments, governance, and regulatory compliance.

“I am excited to be continuing my career at Resilient as a partner,” said Jonathan McGillivray. “I’m looking forward to continuing to contribute to Resilient’s global climate and energy practice and assisting our clients navigate the transition to a net-zero economy. I want to thank my mentors and colleagues for helping me to reach this important career milestone and my family for their endless support.”

About Resilient LLP

Resilient LLP provides expert legal, policy, and regulatory advice and services to clients across the climate change and energy spectrum. We practice exclusively in the areas of climate change, clean energy, and related Indigenous rights. We have built a leading global climate and energy practice over two and a half decades based on strategic insights and a focus on enduring client relationships.

Our mission is to facilitate the success and resilience of our clients in a changing climate. As a world-leading specialized climate and clean energy law firm, we are deeply committed to the transition to a net-zero, prosperous, and climate-resilient future. Our clients include domestic and international public and private energy companies, governments, financial institutions, industry associations, Indigenous communities, non-governmental organizations, and other global law firms.
